

COTTON TREE HOSTS ISLAND OUTPOSTS IN GRAND CAYMAN

“Exclusive event introduces Cotton Tree to the Caymanian community and Island Outposts thanks its loyal guests for their patronage.”

Grand Cayman, Cayman Islands (10 March 2009) – Cotton Tree, a collection of four modern Caymanian cottages situated on the northernmost point of Grand Cayman, and owner Heather Lockington, hosted the legendary Chris Blackwell and his team from Island Outposts for an exclusive event on Thursday night (March 5th 2009).

PHOTO: L – R Heather Lockington, Cotton Tree; Jason Henzell, Island Outposts; Pilar Bush, AtWater Consulting; Chris Blackwell, Island Outposts and Joelle Meghoo, MJM Design Studio. Chris Blackwell is holding a Caymanite sculpture by Horacio Esteban, of a Cayman Catboat.

“We were delighted to provide our guests with an ‘advance preview’ of Cotton Tree and to host our friends at Island Outposts as they thanked their guests for their patronage with an invitation to ‘EaseBack’ at their properties in Jamaica,” said Heather.

“This place (Cotton Tree) is so beautiful that I would like to make it an Island Outpost ...” commented Chris Blackwell when he addressed the gathering. And while this is a sound endorsement for Cotton Tree; Heather, who is Caymanian, is firmly committed to her vision which will see Cotton Tree emerging as a new brand of Caymanian hospitality providing its guests with a distinct sense of place complemented by world class concierge service.

“Cotton Tree is inspired by my love of Cayman and I can’t wait to welcome guests and to introduce them to Cotton Tree – Cayman’s best kept secret,” concluded Heather.

###

Image provided by Cotton Tree/Patrick Broderick